DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the conducting medium must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. The replacement sheet(s) should be labeled "Replacement Sheet" in the page header (as per 37 CFR 1.84(c)) so as not to obstruct any portion of the drawing figures. If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Specification

2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the specification must be thoroughly checked for missing words, grammatical errors and typographical errors, e.g. the distance between the circuit board and the housing surface cannot be measured in nm.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

Claims 4 and 15 are vague and indefinite because the heat dissipating fan appears to be positioned adjacent or next to the meshed portion as shown in the drawings but not above.

Claims 9 and 19 are vague and indefinite because the conducting medium has not been shown in the drawings.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tsai in view of Chiou.

Tsai discloses a heat dispersing module for a power supply comprising the housing 1, 2 having a top surface, a bottom surface, a first side surface and a second side surface, wherein said first side surface is opposite to said second side surface; a heat-dispersing fan 13 mounted on said first side surface of said housing; a first vent area disposed on said second side surface of said housing; a second vent area disposed on said top surface of said housing; and a printed circuit board 12 positioned in said housing, the first side surface of said housing comprises a meshed portion, the heat-dispersing fan 13 is positioned next to the meshed portion. Tsai discloses the claimed invention except the distance between the circuit board and the bottom surface of the housing providing two cooling channels for two differently heated areas, the heat sink and the heat conducting plate are not disclosed in Tsai reference. Chiou discloses the power supply having the cooling arrangement where the circuit board divides the housing forming two channels, the heat conducting plate or the heat sink 401 is also disclosed and the heat sink is known element as indicated in the instant application (see Page 10, par. [0035] lines 6-8). It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to dispose the circuit board as disclosed by Chiou in the device disclosed by Tsai for sufficient cooling on both heat generating surfaces of the circuit board. The details written to the conducting medium, the fixing screw are well known and not being proven as critical for the invention therefore they are obvious; the specific distance in range of 10-50 mm between the circuit board and the bottom of the housing would have been an obvious matter of design choice, a change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955).
